DETAILED ACTION

1. Receipt is acknowledged of the preliminary amendment filed 4/24/02.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in-

(1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effect under this subsection of a national application published under section 122(b) only if the international application designating the United States was published under Article 21(2)(a) of such treaty in the English language; or

(2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that a patent shall not be deemed filed in the United States for the purposes of this subsection based on the filing of an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a).

3. Claims 1, 2, 8-14, and 16-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Schuessler et al, US Patent No. 6,332,575.

Schuessler et al disclose an audible indicator for optical code reading system comprising:
a process for providing audible signal in response to the detector of multiple bar code symbols proceeds as follows. An attempt is made to locate scan data at 622; if the data is not located at 624, control returns to 622. A decode attempt on a 1D symbol is made at 626. If additional data is not located (i.e., the decode is complete) at 628, control proceeds to 630 which causes a low-frequency beep, indicating the reading of a 1D symbol and control proceeds to 632. If 1D decode fails at 628, a scan attempt of decoding a 2D symbol is made at 634. If both symbols have not been decoded, control returns to 622. A successful scan of the 2D symbol causes a high-frequency beep, indicating the reading of a 2D symbol and control proceeds to 632. A determination is made at 632 as to whether both the 1D and 2D symbols have been decoded. If the result is failure to decode both symbols, control returns to 622. If both symbols have been decoded, a third type of beep, of a user-selected frequency, is emitted and the decoded data is transmitted to a processing system. The decoder, therefore, will beep twice during the decode attempt of a mixed 1D-2D hybrid symbol, such as MicroPDF code above a UPS-A code or code 128 linear symbol. Distinct decode beeps may be emitted as the decoder recognizes and decodes each part of the hybrid. The operator can determine, after the first beep, that one symbol has been decoded and, in addition, the type of symbol that has been decoded so that he or she can concentrate on scanning the symbol that has not been decoded (see col. 15, line 20 +).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 3-7 and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Schuessler et al in view of Collins, Jr., US Patent No. 5,444,226. The teachings Of Schuessler et al have been discussed above.

Schuessler et al fail to disclose or fairly suggest that the indication means are LEDs.

Collins, Jr. discloses a real-time bar code scanning performance feedback system comprising: a speaker 20 and lights indicator 18 (bicolor LEDs).

In view of Collins, Jr.'s teachings, it would have been obvious for a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to incorporate the well-known LED as an alternate means for indicating to an operator that a valid scan. Such modification would make the system more versatile and practical by providing an alternate means for validating each scan when the system is being used in a noisy environment and allowing hearing-impaired operators to effectively operate the system. Therefore, it would have been an obvious extension as taught by Schuessler et al.

Conclusion

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Swart et al, US Patent No. 4,825,057, disclose a portable laser scanning head. Wittensoldner et al, US Patent No. 5,144,114, disclose a volume control apparatus. Gabrielson, US Patent No. 6,102,289, disclose a 1D finder pattern for 2D bar codes. Chadima, Jr. et al, US Patent No. 6,234,395, disclose an instant portable bar code. Ooshima et al, US Patent No. 6,267,296, disclose a two-dimensional code and method of optically reading the same. Correa et al, US Patent No. 6,340,114, disclose an image engine and method for code readers.
